

DEAD BY LAW, SLAYER TESTIFIES AGAINST ANOTHER

William Flack, Out of Sing
Sing Death House, Hired to Kill, He Says.

William Flack, an occupant of the Sing Sing death house, from which he has been temporarily transferred by a special law passed by the recent Legislature, took the stand before Judge Nott and a jury today. He was brought to this city to tell his story of how Angelo Leggio induced him to break into the flat of Louisa Macaluso at midnight on April 8, 1914, and shoot and kill Giuseppe Marino, of whom Leggio was jealous.

This man, who is already dead, by law—he was sentenced to die in the chair in the week ending April 26 this year—answered the questions of Assistant District Attorney Allen R. Wellman plainly. Save for the Judge, the jury, the attorneys, the court officers and three newspaper reporters, there were ten spectators only in the room, one of whom was a young woman not directly connected with the case, and another was Conrad Flack, father of the witness.

William Flack's first answers brought out the fact that after his conviction and transfer to the death house he had confessed to his father, Then Father Cashin, the Sing Sing chaplain, telephoned to the District Attorney and a representative of District Attorney Perkins sent an assistant to Sing Sing.

"Have you been promised anything for testifying here?" asked Mr. Wellman.

"No, sir," said Flack. "I asked the District Attorney what he could do for me and he said he couldn't do nothing."

At yesterday's session of the trial Louisa Macaluso told how, in the effort to save Flack, Leggio had forced her to make a false confession that she shot Marino herself when he threatened to kill her unless she went on the street for his profit.

"A man named Patsy came to me—I had seen him around—and said they had a job for me," Flack said. "He said Angelo had a job for me. I knew Angelo. He said Angelo wanted to get Marino out of the way. Marino had taken Angelo's girl away from him."

"I said, 'What is there in it for me?' They said $200, and showed me a roll of bills and said it would come out of that. Then Patsy took me to Angelo Leggio and there was John Orendach, the one-eyed man with him and a week later Angelo gave me a gun and with the others took me with them to No. 634 East Thirtieth Street, and we went up to Louisa's room. I never saw Marino before. I had seen Louisa before."

We walked around a while and then we went back to Louisa's. We went up to her flat. Her door was locked. We all got against it. Angelo snatched his fingers. We broke the door down and went into the hall.

"I plunged to the left into a bedroom and saw Marino lying on the bed and Louisa beside him. I don't know if they were awake. I took out my gun and shot it at his head. I went down to the street. I didn't see him."

SHOPLIFTERS' TRAIL LED DETECTIVE TO ROOMFUL OF LOOT

Proceeds of Many Robberies
Found in Manhattan After Arrests in Brooklyn.

Stolen property to the value of several thousand dollars was found today by Detective William Conroy, of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, in a room at No. 354 West Forty-fifth Street, Manhattan. Conroy was investigating the case of two shoplifters, May Anderson and Clarence Wilson, picked up in a Brooklyn department store last Saturday. He had identified both the man and the woman as a pair of birds and learning the Manhattan address he called at the house this morning.

He found jewelry, silverware, coats and clothing. A diamond ring and some gold link cuff buttons were identified at once by Celesta Miller, an actress having a room in the same house. Her belongings were ransacked on March 11 last. The coats and clothes are believed to have been stolen from New York stores.

Wilson, who has done time at Snake Hill, is the husband of Sylvia Levy, now in the Queen's County Jail serving a term for shoplifting. Sylvia is known as the Queen of Shoplifters, and escaped from a detective who had her in custody last April by breaking from his grasp and running down the steps of the elevated railroad station at Fifth Street and Sixth Avenue.

May Anderson has done time in Syracuse. Her husband is now on Blackwell's Island serving a term of one year.

Caught King of Lemon Gang. "I have here the king of the Lemon Gang," said a policeman who arrested John Hogan before Magistrate Corbett in the West Side Police Court today.

The Lemon Gang is an organization that squeezes money out of people. He said Hogan halted Edward Henry, a broker, of No. 21 West One Hundred and Twenty-eighth Street, in a doorway in Forty-eighth Street west of Broadway at 4 o'clock this morning and robbed him. The prisoner was held in 12-600 hall.

BIG TENEMENT EMPTIED BY AMMONIA FUMES. A break in an ammonia pipe in the cellar of No. 290 East Houston Street, where Barney Krushowsky, a packer and produce dealer, has his refrigerating plant, drove workmen and dwellers in the six-story tenement away from the building today, and it was not until Revere Company No. 2 with their special smokeproof helmets got into the cellar that the flow of ammonia was stopped.

When the break occurred the half dozen men employed in the cellar ran into the street. No one had turned off the motor forcing the ammonia through the pipes under heavy pressure and the fumes were spreading through the tenement. Diana Krushowsky, the thirteen-year-old daughter of the proprietor, went up the fire escapes and warned the ten families of what had occurred. A call was sent for Revere Company No. 2 at Fifth Street and First Avenue, but when the firemen arrived they could not get into the cellar to shut off the motive power. Then the rescue company was called.

Cap't. McElligott and four of his men equipped with their helmets and breathing apparatus, entered the cellar. The motive power was soon shut off and the flow of ammonia stopped.

THESE SPORT SKIRTS ARE IN DEMAND

Now the days of Golf and Tennis, long tramps and outdoor life—and the immaculate white skirt with all.

Not by proxy, but made on our direction and designs was this collection of cool, white summer skirts. There is that peculiar differentness about them which will appeal to you the instant they are seen. A variety of designs carefully selected for golfing, yachting, tennis or tramping by the sea. Then, too, the materials used were selected with care, insuring their same fresh appearance after their return from the tub.

It almost seems as though these skirts were made to go back of their pockets—there are so many shapes and sizes of them.

A white cordaline, at $2.50, has a single pocket and a row of buttons down the front.

A white duck, at $3.25, carries a big pocket at the side, with three pearl buttons to trim it—and buttons down the front. These are detachable for laundering.

A pique, at $3.95, has regular "trouser pockets"—only feminized by a buttoned back flap on each.

The pocket on a $5 corduroy skirt is box-pleated. Another style is made with a shallow yoke and pockets that appear to hang at each side. In corduroy, sand colored and white, $6.50. In white drill, $5.

A white corduroy at $7.50 has shield shaped pockets at each side, each with an inset buttonhole and an oddly shaped ivory button hung like a pendant.

These Dressy Low Shoes for Women Will Go Marching Out at the low price we've marked them—$3.95. There's a style in patent leather with a curved heel and white kid quarter, with an oval black ornament to trim the front.

And a patent kid with fawn and gray buckskin quarters.

And a slenderly shaped shoe of Russia calf with a dull grey strap that comes from beneath the instep and forms the small shield in front. This may be had in grey with black strap, also.

While a tan shoe with a tan heel uses patent leather for the quarter and top.

CURIOUSLY WROUGHT RING LEADS UP TO ARREST

Two Men Seized in Paterson on Suspicion of a New York Robbery.

Detective Matthew Connor, passing Elizabeth's jewelry store, in Paterson, last night, glanced in and saw a curiously wrought gold ring being weighed for purchase.

Connor put the man who was trying to sell the ring to the jeweller under arrest on suspicion. At each quarter his prisoner described himself as J. A. Hamilton, of Cleveland, and New York. Another man arrested gave his name as Daniel Schom of No. 205 West Ninety-fifth Street.

They admitted pawning a diamond in the ring for $200 in a Paterson pawn shop. They had a pawn ticket showing they had received $125 for another diamond ring pawned earlier in the day.

New York police and ring and arrested accurately the description of one of two diamond rings which Mrs. Charles Hamilton had reported stolen earlier in the day.

LEAVES HALF OF ESTATE TO AN OLD SWEETHEART

Dr. T. T. Wilkerson, Jersey City
Dentist, Remembers Former Fiancee.

Half of the estate of Dr. Thomas T. Wilkerson, a Jersey City dentist, who died at Avon, N. J., May 5, is left by his will to Mrs. Elizabeth Rector Peterson of Jersey City, to whom he was engaged fourteen years ago, several years before her marriage.

All the testator's books go to the St. Augustine College Institute of Raleigh, N. C.; $300 to Mrs. Mae McLane, an assistant in his office; $100 to Henderson, Jackson, Hagan, Co., for a monument and the remainder is to be divided among other heirs.

FELL OFF LOFTY BRIDGE.

Painter Fatally Injured by Fall
From Williamsburg Structure.

Carl Anderson, forty-seven years old, a painter, of No. 23 Buffalo Avenue, Brooklyn, was slung through the railing of the Williamsburg Bridge to reach a scaffold 100 feet above the street at Wythe Avenue and South Fifth Street this morning when he lost his balance and fell. His skull was fractured and both legs were broken when he landed in a little park space under the bridge.

Anderson struck a few feet from where a woman was seated with her baby. He was taken to the Eastern District Hospital, where it was said he will probably die.

Corn Comes Off as Easy as You Please!

"Get-it" Being Used by Millions!
It is the first time that a real, sure-fire corn cure has ever been discovered. "GET-IT" is the new corn-remover, based on an entirely new principle. It is a new, different formula, never successfully imitated. It makes corns shrink and drop. Two drops do the work. You don't tumble up your leg any more with sticky tape and plasters that grow down the poor corn—no more flesh-eating knives that don't "stay put"—no more looking at corns with knives or razors, no more bleeding or danger of blood poisoning. No more limping around day after day with sore corns, no more corn pains.

"GET-IT" is now the biggest-selling corn cure in the world. Get it in any drug or shoe store, or call on our agent, To-night's night.

"GET-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25 cents a bottle, or sent direct by Dr. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

"GET-IT" is sold in New York City by Meyer Weinman Co.
